The folks behind onetime San Francisco-based Batter Blaster (they're in Austin, Tex., now), reduced the act of making pancakes to "Just point, blast, and cook!" They're currently in the process of rolling out a new product: the Hickory Smoked Bacon pancake in an aerosol can. This is either a sign of the Apocalypse or the existence of God, depending on your perspective. We haven't received word on when the new product will hit shelves, but you can drool (or gag) over the above artwork (which we've been told is subject to change.)
